B-G Attempting To Form Gov't By Next Monday

POST Political Correspondent

THE only breath of fresh air at the Security Council's latest session on the Congo was the sensible LITTLE Liberian proposal that the PROGRESS Council advise IN THE journ and re-CONGO convene in Africa. It is a great pity that the proposal was not acted upon. First, it would have compelled the Council's members — and perhaps even the respective Foreign Offices — to have a closer look at the realities of Africa. Instead of discussing events there in the hackneyed terms of East-West and colonialist-neutralist ideological warfare. Secondly, it would have focused world attention on the real meaning behind the Liberian proposal namely, that African problems must be studied with an open mind.

In the event, the venue was the familiar one, and the familiar charges and counter charges were brought out in the usual fashion, varied only by the added intensity of the debate as a whole and, of course, the Soviet attack on the Secretary-General. And, once again, the Congolese people tended to recede into the background.

We in this country, have learned not to expect too much of the Security Council; still, it is a pity that, apart from a clause urging the reconvening of the Congolese Parliament, nothing of consequence was resolved on the crucial issue of Congolese domestic political peace. The proposals put forward by the Conciliation Commission could have served as a basis for a more constructive approach.

Nevertheless, the resolution reflects certain charges of considerable consequence. A man in other things, it requires member states to refrain from assisting the Congolese except under UN auspices, forbids both the recruitment of volunteers and transit through their territories of aid, whether in the shape of manpower or material. One of the sponsors of the resolution was Nasser's UAR, but that has been most conspicuous as a provider of aid to one of the parties and which has been doing its best to persuade the Sudan to allow transit of material. Apart from the monumental hypocrisy behind the UAR's behaviour, it would seem that Nasser has decided that the Stanleyville authorities have passed the peak of their influence and are liable to be overwhelmed by General Mobutu's forces. Rather than tie himself to a possibly bankrupt enterprise he has concluded that the best thing to do is reverse his position and join the chorus of righteous protest.

For the rest, with one exception, the clauses of the resolution cover much the same ground as the Security Council resolutions of last summer, including the demand that the Belgians quit the country. Looking back over the years of Belgian rule in the Congo, it is hard to champion them today. But it is an inescapable fact of the Congolese situation that if eliminating the remaining Belgians solves one problem, it creates another, indeed, has already done so, to the point where that they have left. It took 12,000 Belgian civil servants to administer the Congo, for good or ill. It also took as many and more civilian engineers, traders, and others to keep life going. The U.S. cannot even begin to replace more than a fraction of these, and that fraction will take a long time to learn the languages, customs and difficulties peculiar to the country. Yet replaced they must. Will that mean a new "Year of Colonialism" — U.N. Colonialism? In Mr. Tshombe's paradoxical and cruel phrase? Certainly Dr. Linner's Civilian Operations Mission does not deserve anything but praise for its efforts, which must continue and be reinforced if further catastrophe is to be averted.

The real innovation in this latest Security Council resolution is the provision that force may be employed by the U.N. to prevent civil war. It is too early to make out just what this will imply in practice; for the moment it can only be said that this clear invitation to involve the U.N. as such in domestic conflicts is a very grave departure from the past. Should this provision be acted upon, it may have the most serious consequences in troubled areas in other continents. The recognition of the fact that what is happening in the Congo is indeed civil war is in itself a belated achievement. Whether forcible intervention is the way to deal with it remains to be seen.

U.S. Selects Three For Space Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Florida (Reuters). — Yesterday chose three astronauts to begin final training for a manned rocket flight expected in two or three months.

The three are Lt. Colonel John Glenn, 37, of the U.S. Marines, Air Force Captain Virgil Grissom, 33, and Navy Commander Alan Shepard, 35.

The choice of the three men was announced at a press conference after a Mercury Capsule of the type an astronaut would travel in was subjected to severe reentry stresses in a successful test.

This was the first official NASA gathering that Mr. Ben-Gurion had attended at the automatic Central Committee session in Tel Aviv on January 12, in which the Prime Minister presented his long analysis of the "Affair."

The meeting confirmed the appointment of a special committee, comprising Messrs. Levi Eshkol, Giora Joseph, Yaakov Almog and Aviva Gordin, to Mr. Ben-Gurion to conclude his coalition negotiations. They are to hold their first meeting with the N.R.P. this morning. After this meeting Mr. Ben-Gurion is expected to go to the President to accept the task of forming a coalition.

At one point in the meeting Mr. Ben-Gurion said that he considered that the general attacks which had been directed against him recently had rendered him "the most maligned man in the world" and that he would find an occasion to address the Party convention and also the nation in order to reply to his critics.

For Coalition

Mr. Ben-Gurion said that by next Monday no Government seemed in sight which would have to decide whether to support new elections or seek "other alternatives."

Mr. Ben-Gurion did not specify what these alternatives were.

Police Minister Behor Shitrit, after the meeting, said he would not rule out the possibility of holding new elections. All other speakers supported the principle of a coalition with the N.R.P. and Posle Agudat Yisrael.

Mr. Shitrit was of the opinion that only new elections would restore full confidence in Mr. Ben-Gurion's political prestige, had suffered, and that the Sephardi community in particular would not like to see a new Government that would require too many concessions to the N.R.P. He was referring to the likelihood that the Religious Affairs portfolio would return to the N.R.P. and not remain in the hands of a Sephardi representative.

In the course of the discussion Mr. Zalman Aranane, M.K. proposed a special 10-member committee to deal with all aspects of the present Government crisis and the formation of the new cabinet, since a large a body as the Secretariat and the Knesset could not give proper consideration to all the tactical questions involved.

Mr. Aranane's proposal to appoint a new committee was not supported by the majority of the speakers. Mr. Ben-Gurion also opposing "further committees." At the suggestion of Messrs. M. Namir and M. Shitrit, a new committee was resolved to confirm the coalition negotiations' committee which has been acting up to now and to leave to its discretion which of the Mapam leaders were to be co-opted for the consultations.

Following their party's Executive Committee, the N.R.P. Minister yesterday held talks with Mapam, and the Progressives in an effort to persuade them to reconstitute the present Government under Prime Minister Ben-Gurion. At a meeting with Development Minister Mordechai Bentov, Messrs. M. Sharot and Y. Berg asked that the Mapam would agree to join a Government with Mr. Ben-Gurion after new elections are held. As Mr. Bentov replied that there would not be any objection, the N.R.P. leaders reiterated their demand that the UAR should be called in as well.

Two West German nuclear scientists are currently in Cairo discussing an atomic programme with the UAR authorities. They were presented by Canadian atomic scientists, and it is assumed here that Soviet bloc experts have been called in as well.

Arab-Israel politics, plus security measures, have obscured from the public the objective of the discussions. One report has it that the UAR wants to build a medium-sized atomic reactor for peaceful purposes. Another says the UAR wants a so-called "breeder" reactor which would be something more than just an experimental project, although not necessarily an indication of military intent.

The two German nuclear scientists are Dr. Alfred Boettcher and Dr. Walther Schnurr. They were sent to Cairo by the West German government at the request of the UAR. They have been instructed by the West German Embassy in Cairo not to talk to the press.

The Germans are also reported to be interested in the meeting with the Progressive leaders Messrs. Y. Harari and M. Kol, a more searching discussion was held and Messrs. Shapiro and Z. Wahnschaff stressed the political and security problems which made a broad coalition imperative. The party's Political Committee is to discuss the N.R.P. appeal at its meeting tomorrow (Thursday).

Burman Troops Fire On Anti-U.S. Mob

RANGOON (AP). — Burman troops opened fire on a mob of demonstrators outside the U.S. Embassy here yesterday seriously wounding 30 persons. One person died later from the effects of tear gas.

The demonstration was in protest against the dropping of arms and ammunition to Burma. Nationalist troops on the Burma-Siam border.

The steel-helmeted troops knelt and opened fire on a crowd estimated at 10,000 after the reading of a Government order banning gatherings of 10 persons or more had failed to disperse the crowd.

The crowd then fled and was pursued through the streets of Rangoon — stopping cars and smashing shop windows.

Plans Said Being Discussed In Cairo to Make UAR Atom Power

NEW YORK (INA). — The "New York Herald Tribune" reported from Cairo yesterday that secret talks are under way there to make the UAR an atomic power. Experts of several nationalities have been called in to help prepare an atomic programme.

Unanswered so far is the question whether the authorities are asking for peaceful or military atomic capability. The indications are that they want both.

Following their party's Executive Committee, the N.R.P. Minister yesterday held talks with Mapam, and the Progressives in an effort to persuade them to reconstitute the present Government under Prime Minister Ben-Gurion. Ministers to Resume Talks With Teachers This Week

Jerusalem Post Reporter

The Minister of Education, Mr. Abba Eban, and the Minister of Finance, Mr. Levi Eshkol, are continuing their Association on Friday in Tel Aviv.

The Association's spokesman yesterday denied a reported statement by the General Secretary of the Teachers' Union, Mr. Levin, that a possible change in the "link" between the pay of elementary and secondary school teachers, as constituting an obstacle to the Association's demands.

Committee, since elementary school teachers without university degrees greatly outnumber high school teachers with such degrees. The Halperin Committee's recommendations involve a total cost of some IL5m over and above the IL5m awarded and being paid under the proposals of the earlier Girt Committee.

Implementation of the Halperin Committee's recommendations on a IL5m basis would be outrageous and would be strenuously opposed by the Teachers' Union.

It is apparent that Finance Minister Eshkol is willing to accept the salary recommendations of the Hatafot's Halperin Committee.

Under these recommendations, a teacher holding an M.A. degree at peak seniority would receive an increase of about IL10 to IL100, as compared to the IL45 or so on the basis of the present IL5m ratio.

The Association is believed to be inclined to accept such a settlement. According to Association sources, the change in the link and subsequent increases for high school teachers would involve an increase of about IL10 to IL100 more than under the present ratio.

The Association decided that it would call a general strike if no settlement is in sight by the end of Purim, in about 30 days time.

The Association has demanded a IL70 rise for a teacher in this category. If the claims of the Association were to be met part-way without changing the present IL5m ratio, the total rise would greatly exceed that proposed by the Halperin

The Association has demanded a IL70 rise for a teacher in this category. If the claims of the Association were to be met part-way without changing the present IL5m ratio, the total rise would greatly exceed that proposed by the Halperin

Committee, since elementary school teachers without university degrees greatly outnumber high school teachers with such degrees. The Halperin Committee's recommendations involve a total cost of some IL5m over and above the IL5m awarded and being paid under the proposals of the earlier Girt Committee.

Implementation of the Halperin Committee's recommendations on a IL5m basis would be outrageous and would be strenuously opposed by the Teachers' Union.

It is apparent that Finance Minister Eshkol is willing to accept the salary recommendations of the Hatafot's Halperin Committee.

Under these recommendations, a teacher holding an M.A. degree at peak seniority would receive an increase of about IL10 to IL100, as compared to the IL45 or so on the basis of the present IL5m ratio.

The Association is believed to be inclined to accept such a settlement. According to Association sources, the change in the link and subsequent increases for high school teachers would involve an increase of about IL10 to IL100 more than under the present ratio.

The Association decided that it would call a general strike if no settlement is in sight by the end of Purim, in about 30 days time.

Income Tax LawServatius Leaving to Press For Loopholes Plugged

The Knesset last night passed the final reading of an Amendment to the Income Tax Ordinance which was originally introduced by the Knesset in May 1960.

Mr. Israel Guri, Chairman of the Finance Committee, said that the aim was to close a number of loopholes in the law and to reduce the tax in some cases.

The amendment makes a number of changes with regard to the filing of separate returns by man and wife. Among them is the provision that if the husband's income is less than the amount of deductions he is entitled to on behalf of his children the difference may be transferred to the wife.

Among the other provisions of the amendment are:

• in calculating income, the husband's net worth of a flat which is leased for 24 years or more must be included. At present this is done only where the flat is actually owned by the occupant.

• the additional amount deductible by a widow or divorced man who has children to support is increased from IL500 to IL700.

• a 25 per cent tax is imposed on the profits of agricultural cooperative societies, and the amount of their funds which enjoy this reduced tax is limited.

Stiff Fines, Jail For Tax Violators

TEL AVIV. — Prison terms and heavy fines were yesterday imposed on three directors of the Kari Berg sausage factory here for concealing income and making false declarations to the income tax authorities.

The accused, Nathan Aberg, Dr. Kurt Bravolovsky, and Kari Berg were sentenced to six months each four of them suspended. They were also fined a total of IL24,000 by Judge M. Rubin in the Magistrate's Court.

The firm's accountant, Eliyahu Peled, was sentenced to three months, two of them suspended, and fined IL6,000 for concealing personal income from the income tax authorities.

In addition, the firm was fined IL7,000 for concealing income and making false declarations.

4000 Schoolchildren to March In Tel Aviv Adloyada

TEL AVIV. — Four thousand pupils of Tel Aviv's schools will take part in the Adloyada procession on Purim, on the 2nd of March, Deputy Mayor, M. Goldstein told a press conference yesterday.

The procession will start at 2:30 p.m. at the corner of Ben Yehuda and Yirmiyahu streets and will proceed up Ben Yehuda, then along Allenby Road and Ayalon to Salameh streets. The last part of the procession will reach Salameh Street at 5 p.m. The Adloyada route is five and a half kilometres long and the length of the procession itself is 2-3 kilometres.

Mr. Goldstein told the press that there will be 70 floats in the procession, designed by the Municipality artist and the pupils. Fourteen orchestras, including six from Tel Aviv, will march and play in the parade. The costs of the Adloyada are estimated at IL100,000 by the preparatory staff, headed by Mr. Gerashof Furman.

The report said the theatre was packed mainly with young workers and students who gave the players a standing ovation and joined in singing Yiddish folksongs.

R/A Tsur Warns Of Arab Progress

Jerusalem Post Reporter BEERSHEBA. — Israel must maintain its qualitative advantage over the UAR in the military sphere since the UAR is spending enormous sums of money in building up an effort whose aim is total war against us, and although the UAR is running into certain difficulties, there is not the slightest doubt that they are making constant progress.

This was stated yesterday by the Chief of Staff, R. A. Tsur, to a meeting of members of the Negev Regional Defence at Keren Hall here. R. A. Tsur said Israel was still one step ahead, and will have to work hard to maintain that advantage.

The spokesman stated yesterday that the Minister had made no mention of a plan to divide schooling into these two years. Mr. Eitan said that there were grounds for studying the question of the education structure and examining whether changes were needed.

Israel's Public Transport on Parade

Two-Month Information Drive Launched

By PHILIP GILLON

ISRAELIS are a restless people, imbued with a passion to leave Point A for Point B, with the intention of hurrying through all the letters of the alphabet. This love of movement infects visitors who succumb happily to the ferment of motion. Catering for Israelis and visitors alike are thousands of buses, trains, planes and ships. The people ministering to the public's demand for more and better transport set out to explain their activities to the citizens of Israel and to themselves during February and March 1961. The drive was launched by the Office of Information and the Ministry of Transport.

Air and Sea

The first stage in the programme was the assembly at El Al's Lod headquarters of 200 people engaged in all the different aspects of public transport by land, sea and air. There they were given a lecture on the workings of the world. The second stage of advance, when it was one of the first to introduce turboprop planes. In recent weeks of which Israel is justly proud would be impossible if the wheels were not kept turning, and the shipping and air freight unavailable.

The Zim Fleet consists of three first-class passenger, two ships carrying passengers and cargo, 29 cargo vessels and two tankers. At the beginning of this year the number of passengers numbered 1,800 men. The registered gross tonnage reached the impressive total of 208,843 tons. Every one of the 36 vessels was purchased since the establishment of the State. It is vital for the country's all-important citrus industry and to the transport of most goods. Merchandise imported virtually from scratch must be one of the most remarkable in the world.

El Al had a long struggle to establish itself as an international air line against the very formidable competition of the great companies of the world. The third stage of advance, when it was one of the first to introduce turboprop planes. In recent weeks

MUSICAL DIARY

Quartet's Progress

State Concert Chamber Music: The Tel Aviv Quartet: Chaim Taub, T. Flaks, violins; E. Weiss, Benjamin violin; E. Ettinger, clarinet; J. Ettinger, bassoon; February 11. Peretz Concerto: B-music for Clarinet and Strings; Yossi Tal String Quartet No. 1 (1954); Dvorak: String Quartet in F major; op. 96; Quartet in B minor for Clarinet, Violin, Violin and Cello, op. 113.

THIS concert surpassed anything this ambitious group of young musicians had achieved so far. Their ensemble spirit has improved considerably and the ensemble has lost much of its hesitancy and nervousness.

The quartet was lucky, immediately with the opening number, where the strings formed a beautiful background to Mr. Ettinger's impassioned bassoon. His playing is often of the greatest beauty; his skill, especially in tone production, is great.

Impressive Concert

Haifa Chamber Music Society: Ida Haendel, violin; Jerome Lowenthal, piano. (Beit Harofe, Tel Aviv, 18.15. Tel Aviv, 20.15. in Cäsarea, op. 78; Bach: Chaconne; Beethoven: Sonata in G major, op. 30 No. 2; Stravinsky: Suite Italienne for violin and piano; Schubert: "Die Schöne Müllerin" on themes by Pergolesi.)

THIS concert was one of the most impressive that Haifa has heard lately. It was sheer pleasure to notice the colourful gradings of the violinist's tempo and dynamics, and the intellectual breadth of the conception of both artists. It is to some raisins from the cake: what a deeply moving experience was the adagio from the Brahms Sonata, or the quite logical continuation of the same atmosphere into the following movement. Now dedicated to Mr. Haendel's colouring in the violin solo of Bach's Chaconne, so often heard but seldom with such noble warmth and sensuous grace. Lowenthal's impetuosity and driving temperament and technical virtuosity also be mentioned. He certainly is now one of Israel's top pianists.

The closing Stravinsky-Suite combines beauty and long-standing dream come true and El Al obtained its first Boeing-707. The decision to invest 21 million dollars in the purchase of jets ends for all time the question as to whether Israel should endeavour to battle with the giants for the custom in the skies.
